At Home in the Eighteenth Century

Interrogating Domestic Space

Edited by Stephen G. Hague, Rowan University, USA and Karen Lipsedge, Kingston University, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Cultures and Societies

The eighteenth-century home, in terms of its structure, design, function, and furnishing, was a site of transformation of spaces, identities, and practices. At Home in the Eighteenth Century brings together factual and fictive texts and spaces to interrogate what constituted the typical Georgian home that we think we know from Jane Austen novels. Contributions from the fields of literature, history, archaeology, art history, heritage studies, and material culture reveal a more nuanced concept of the home and become a steppingstone to greater understanding of eighteenth-century domestic space.
